Real Estate Dealer Complains That He Lost $1.936 From His Cont as He Sought to Trick Sharper.

New York, July 16.—Samuel Lefkowitz, a real estate dealer of No. 273 East Tenth street, told a strange story to Magistrate Breen in the Essex Market Court of having lost $1,936, but the man accused was Lefkowitz said that several days ago be became acquainted with two men, who offered to sell him counterfeit $5 bills which could be passed as easily as other currencould be passed as easily as other curren-cy. He was to get five for $5. He said he consulted with his son-in-law. Patroiman Rechfeld, of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station, who, he said, advised him to con-tinue the negotiations with marked money.

He said he took a marked $5 hill when He said he took a marked $5$ bill when he had made an appointment with the men at a house in Broome street. Leftowitz was induced to take off his coat and hang it on a hook. Later he left the room, he said, and when he returned and tried to talk about buying the counterfeit money the men said the deal must be considered off, as they were not satisfied of the good faith of the buyer.

Lefkowitz said he then put on his coat and accompanied the men to the street, where they separated. He than discovered that his money was missing. The next day he pointed out to a policeman Solomon Solomoff, of No. 20 Clinton street, as one of the two men who had been in the room with him. Solomoff was arrested.

This is only one of several similar cases which have been brought to Essex Market Court in the last few months. In the previous cases the men were discharged for lack of evidence.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL Washington, July 16.-When this reso-lution of Congress is executed at the Government Printing Office, in a few weeks, nstead of one copy of what is known as "Thomas Jefferson's Bible," there will be

The real title of the little volume, written by Jefferson himself on the fly leaf, is "Morals of Jesus of Nazareth." The book is now in the Smithsonian Institution at Washington, in charge of the librarian, Doctor Cyrus Adler, and is one of the most interesting bibliographical specimens in the museum. Its great value lies first of all in the fact that it contains the esti-mate of the Savior by one of the philo-sophical thinkers in the early history of the United States, and, second, in the fact that there is only one copy in exist-ence.

that there is only one copy in existence.

When a law student Jefferson wrote an essay on the "Evidences of Christianity from the Standpoint of a Lawyer," which was considered at the time an interestlag and able argument. The statesman's morals of Jesus consist of extracts from the New Testament, chiefly from St. Luke, St. Matthew and St. John, intended to present the best accounts of incidents in the lives of Christ and his apostles, with all their teachings, that were undisputed and required no interpretation. The selections are evidently those of a lawyer, who is seeking only evidence that is neither ambiguous nor controversial.

BOUND IN LEATHER.

The arrangement was made by Jeffer-

The arrangement was made by Jefferson during his retirement at Monticello after his return from Washington and reatter his return from Washington and required several months in preparation. The book is a red leather-bound volume and contains 161 pages. With great neatness Jefferson pasted upon its pages four versions of the New Testament—Greek, Latin, French and English—in parallel columns and in the order named. Its title page and index are in Jefferson's own hand, and on the pages containing the extracts are found here and there interlineations and notes.

on the pages containing the extracts are found here and there interlineations and notes.

The index refers to the proper place of each passage in the ordinary Testament, so that the reader may compare if he desires. He cites the sections of the Roman law under which the Savior was tried, and also attaches the map of Palestine. In a letter to a friend which was evidently written before he had completed this work, Jefferson referred to it thus:

"I, too, have a wee little book which I call the philosophy of Jesus. It is a pamdigma of his doctrine made by cutting the texts out of the book and arranging them on the pages of a blank book in a certain order of time of subject. A more beautiful or precious morsel of ethics I have never seen. It is a document in proof that I am a real Christian—that is to say, a disciple of the doctrines of Jesus, very different from the Platonists, who call me infidel and themselves Christians and preach of the gospel while they draw all of their characteristic dogmas from what its authors never said or saw. They have compounded from the heathen mysteries a system beyond the comprehension of man, of which the great Reformer of the victous ethics and delaw of the Jews, were he to return to earth, would not recognize one feature.

"If I had time I would add to my little feature.

"If I had time I would add to my little book the Greek, Latin and French texts in columns side by side, and I wish I could subjoin a translation of Gassendi's syntagma of the doctrines of Epicurus, notwithstanding calumnies of the and caricaturists of Cicero, in the most rational system remaining of the philosophy of the ancients as frugal of the yiclous of the ancients, as frugal of the vicious indult nee and fruitful of virtue as the hyperbolical extravagances of his rival

An examination of the book shows that after writing this letter, Jefferson changed his mind in regard to the title and also decided to add the Greek, Latin and French versions.

PURCHASED BY GOVERNMENT.

Thomas Jefferson's library was pur-chased by the Government and is now included in the Congressional Library. It appears, however, that this volume did not afterwards purchased for $400 by Miss Randolph.

John Adams and Thomas Jefferson, who were at one time bitter enemies, after-wards became warm friends, and the com-pliation of Jefferson's Bible became the subject of considerable correspondence be-tween them.

On January 29, 1804, in a letter written at Washington to Doctor Priestly, Jeffer-sen said: sen said:
"I rejoice that you have undertaken the son said:

"I rejoice that you have undertaken the task of comparing the moral doctrines of Jesus with those of the ancient philosophers. I think you cannot avoid giving, as a preliminary to the comparison, a digest of his moral doctrine, extracted in his own words from the evangelists and leaving out everything relative to his personal history and character. It would be short and precious. With a view to do this formy own satisfaction, I had sent to Philadelphia to get two Testaments Greek of the same edition and two English, with a design to cut the doctrines of morality and peste them on the leaves of a book in the manner you describe in framing your harmony. But I shall now get the thing done by better hands."

In a letter to Mr. Adams August 22, 1813, Jefferson says that he had prepared a syllabus of the Christian teachings for Doctor Priestly and Doctor Rush, and that Doctor Rush's family had returned it after the death of that gentleman, to Mr. Jefferson's great delight, for he found that it would involve him in a religious controvers.

JEFFERSON'S COMPILATION.

that it would involve him in a religious controversy.

JEFFERSON'S COMPILATION.

In Jefferson's compilation of the gospels he omitted everything of a miraculous nature and confined his clippings to the teachings of Jesus. He clipped from all the gospels, using the verses which make the clearest statement where the texts are practically the same.

In the concluding verse of the work he takes John xix, 42, and Matthew, xxvii, 69, and combines them, clipping out all but the plain statement of the burial. The result is as follows:

"John xix, 42: There laid they Jesus."

"Matthew, xxvii, 69: " . and " . "

"Matthew, xxvii, 60: ... and ... rolled a great stone to the door of the sepuicher, and departed."
Thus he followed out to the end his general plan and omitted all that could not be explained to the satisfaction of a practical lawyer, leaving Christ buried forever and giving no evidence of belief in the resurrection.

cal lawyer, leaving Christ buried forever and giving no evidence of belief in the resurrection.

Jefferson himself wrote many proverbaquite as many as Solomon—and, says one of his biographers, "was quite as careless in observing them." However that may be, his own code of morals which he thought should be observed is found in what he called "A Catalogue of Canons for Observation in Practical Life." which was written in his youth. This has been preserved to posterity, and in view of the interest recently revived in Jefferson and his doings and writings by the action of Congress is interesting. This was Jefferson's code:

1. Never put off until to-morrow what you can do to-day.

2. Never trouble another for what you can do yourself.

3. Never spend your money before you have it.

4. Never buy what you don't want be-

BOYS TAKE DYNAMITE STICKS. Mischievous Youngsers Do Not

Realize Their Danger. New York, July 16.-The Brooklyn police are trying to locate a dozen sticks of dynamite supposed to be in the possession of mischlevous boys living in the borough.

of mischlevous boys living in the borough. How the boys ever got away with the high explosive without being blown up is incomprehensible.

The youngsters had journeyed to Bergen Beach in search of amusement, and in some way got aboard a floating theater that Manager Percy Williams brought from down East a few years ago.

The floating theater has not been used for any performances, but has been moored near Bergen Beach, and used for the storage of properties not in actual use at the beach. Here the dynamite, which is used in a naval show, is stored, because it was supposed to be far removed from danger.

The caretaker employed to look after the floating theater was surprised to find several youngsters disporting themselves on the deck of the theater. He saw them throwing the sticks of dynamite around, and hurried to warn them of their danger. Before he could get at them, however, he saw two of the boys rowing away and was told that they had taken a dozen of the sticks with them. A chase was organized immediately, but the youngsters got zwwy.

CANARIES DEAD, WILL TRY PULICE

Man Who Cared for Songsters Arrested and Pets Left to Perish.

New York, July 16.-The Jersey City po cemen will be tried before the Police Board at its next trial meeting on charges preferred by Frank Stevens, president of he Real Estate Trust Company, who lives at No. 54 Gifford avenue, Jersey City, The charge which the policemen must face is that, owing to neglect by them, Mr. Stevens's canary birds did not get their regular meals, and that in consquence several of them died. It is the most novel complaint that has ever been made to Chief of Police Murphy, but the Chief, who, with Inspector Arch-Ibold and many other officers of the Jersey City Police Department, is a member of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, is conducting a rigid investi-gation. Until the investigation is con-cluded the policemen have the benefit of the doubt, and Chief Murphy refuses to make known the names of the alleged of-fenders. The whole trouble arose through a disagreement between Fornier Russell of No. 122 Sussex street. Mr. Stevens's hired man and his wife. Russell and his wife have

The clerk found the birds in a pitiable state. All over the two big cages the little creatures were staggering, their bills open in the agony of thirst and hunger. One died as he gazed. Two more were dead and three dying. So far gone were most of the birds that he had to drop water down their throats drop by drop to revive them, and then slowly feed them with his fingers. It took him three hours to straighten out things as best he could. It was noon before Mr. Stevens bocated Russell at the Gregory Street Police Station. He called him to task in severe language. Russell then declared that it was not his fault, but that of the police. He insisted that on being arrested his first thought was of the birds, and that he begged the policeman who took him to his not lived happily in more than a year. They have figured frequently in the police courts during that time.

Russell has had his wife, Mary, who lives apart from him, at No. 273 Warren street, arrested, and Saturday last she went before Foormaster Hewitt and secured an order for an abandonment warrant. The warrant was issued by Police Judgo Frank J. Higgins of the First Criminal Court, and served by Policeman Martin of the Gregory Street Station on Russell Saturday articinoon.

Russell was putting up the shutters on Mr. Stevens's real estate office when arrested. Mr. Stevens is staying at Lakewood. His hobby is the raising of song birds. In his handsome Gifford avenue home Mr. Stevens left the birds in the care of Russell, with instructions that they be fed and watered and the cases cleaned not less than twice a day.

When Mr. Stevens reached his office yeaterlay and did not find Russell there his first anxiety was for his birds. Nobody could tell him what had become of the hired man. Mr. Stevens sent his clerk to the house at once to see that no harm betell his pers.

The clerk found the birds in a pitfable state. All over the two big cages the little treatures were fed. The police deny that the canaries were fed. The police deny that the made any such request.

Chief Mugphy declares that if the request was indeed and ignored, those at family troubles are still the subject as still the subject of consideration by Judge Higgins.

Blankets Saved a Life.

San Jose, Cal., July 16.—Charles Ebman was struck by a fast express on the Southern Railroad between this city and College Park and hurled fifty feet, and strange to say, escaped with only a number of severe bruises.
